

Supply List
Painting with Gelli Plates
Janet Trierweiler

Printing Plate Gelli Plate <https://www.gelliarts.com>. There are many companies that make Gelli Plates. Make sure you read reviews. I suggest Gelli Arts Size 5"x7"

Brayer - 4" brayer

Baren

Paints If you use Acrylic paint you will need Golden Open Medium or Glazing Medium to add to your paint or if you use Open Acrylic paints, there is no need for the medium

Inks If you prefer to use water based block printing ink. These are made specifically for block printing but acrylics and water based oils work fine. Water-based printmaking inks are the other option.

Paint Brushes Variety of brushes (we will discuss on first day of class)

Stencils Variety of stencils (we will discuss on first day of class)

Palette paper or Reynolds freezer paper bigger than your Gelli Plate

Paper Lots of paper for experimentation. The smoother the paper, the more detailed the print. The more absorbent the paper, the easier to print. Japanese rice paper is good.

No Glossy Paper for use with the Gelli plates. It does something to break down the mineral oil in the plate and sticks to the plate.

Tape painters tape or masking tape

Spray Bottle
