9155 Monotype through Drawing

Sarah Smelser

Monotype traditionally requires brushes and is historically a way for painters to enter the medium of printmaking. This workshop focuses on trace monotype, which is quite different. Trace monotype is a linear approach to making one-of-a-kind prints – one that feels much more like drawing than painting. Done most effectively on dry Asian paper, trace monotype can stand on its own or can be the beginnings of collages or mixed media works. Trace monotype is portable, does not use a press, and invites possibilities for plein air printmaking. In this workshop, participants will also practice press printing and learn to stencil print, counterproof, and ghost print to augment their trace monotype images and add passages of color. Accessible and unique, these techniques are for artists of varied experience, from beginning drawing students to seasoned printmakers.

Dennis Barnett

Composition can, quite literally, make or break the success of a photograph. If good composition does not come naturally, it can be experienced through discussion of basic principles, which can be very engaging. Positive and negative space, proper focus, scale and eye direction are some of the critical aspects of great composition. Join us for a lively workshop as we raise the level of our photography and imagination.

9014 Dancing Brush Creativity

Tamara Wasserman

The "Dancing Brush" method is based on the art of Zen and the Abstract Expressionism movement. It is an intuitive way to awaken our creativity. Here the movement of our arm and hand as well as gesture guide our brush. We follow the dance of the brush, and it leads us into the unknown riches of the hidden creativity. We use Sumi ink and brushes of varied sizes, we make marks, we experiment and play, we paint together and apart. As the process develops, we might introduce elements of collage and found 2D objects from our everyday. Interaction is a part of our process. We will work in groups of two, freely adding and changing elements that are already on paper. Layering, collaging, and even venturing into 3D are possible.

Read more on Registration Information and Policies on our website.
